Abstract

System and Method of Clocking an IP Core During a Debugging Operation

5   According to the invention, an IP core is clocked during a debugging operation. by switching from the clock used for testing the device under test to a clock oscillator or any other free-running clock source.